aid to the Afghan resistance because of political and economic reasons. 25X ISMAILIS DEFECTING TO THE RESISTANCE The leader of a proregime Afghan Shia group has requested help from the resistance to get to Pakistan. IN BRIEF 2 ALTERNATIVES TO BABRAK Rumors that President Babrak Karmal will be replaced have recently increased. There is, however, no clear alternative to Babrak within the Afghan leadership. Leadership options—in decreasing order of likelihood—include replacing Babrak with a member of his Parcham faction, a member of the rival Khalq faction, or a coalition government headed by a relative unknown. 25X This document is prepared weekly by the Office of Near Eastern and South Asian Analysis and the Office of Soviet Analysis. The Soviets are probably aware that, at best, only marginal improvement would result from installing one of these men. Most Afghans would regard them as Soviet puppets. They are less objectionable than Babrak only because they so far have not dealt with many of the issues that face a president. The odds are against anyone accomplishing much through the inefficient and often secretly disloyal Afghan civil service. Moreover, no one is likely to be able to reconcile the bitter differences between the Khalqis and Parchamis in the next several years.	25)
The Soviets might form a coalition government either as part of a peace settlement or to try to win over part of the resistance. Such a government would lack credibility if headed by a Communist, so Moscow would presumably try to install a non-Communist who believed that Kabul must have good relations with Moscow. Rumors in Kabul and among Afghans abroad about such a candidate have included former Prime Minister Yusuf, former King Zahir Shah, and his son-in-law Prince Abdul Wali. Because these figures represent the pre-Marxist era and because they are closely associated with the West, they would probably be unacceptable both to the
